

ECOTOURISM GRAND RESERVE

greenspain

Green Spain Ecotourism Grand Reserve is the gateway to a different way of traveling: a natural corridor between mountains, forests, and Atlantic coasts where you can discover authentic experiences, connect with local life, and contribute to its conservation.

Traveling through the Green Spain Ecotourism Reserve means immersing yourself in a mosaic of 25 protected natural areas in Galicia, Asturias, Cantabria, and the Basque Country. From Atlantic islands to river canyons, ancient beech forests and rugged coastlines, this biodiversity corridor invites you to discover northern Spain through sustainable tourism.

The Reserve is not just a territory: it is a community of guides, local businesses, and organizations working to offer unique experiences that respect the rhythms of nature and local traditions. Interpreted hiking, wildlife observation, geotourism, boat trips, and artisan workshops are just some of the more than 100 options available. To make your trip easier, you now have a new website and app where you can plan your experience, choose the best time for each destination, or directly contact those who make this way of traveling possible. Here, every step counts. Every visit contributes to caring for the land and keeping rural cultures alive. Because in the Green Spain Ecotourism Grand Reserve, the journey doesn't begin at the destination: it begins with how you choose to experience it.
